2nd Edition of BRCE

will be held from 10 to 12 October 2017

The Bearing and Reliability Conference & Expo

Due to the great success of the BRCE event that ran on 22 – 23 March 2016 and the request of many participants to run it again, the agenda is set for 2017.

The first edition of the Bearing Reliability Conference & Expo is held with over 120 participants from 11 different countries, where the industry players found the chance to come together during a two days' knowledge & networking event.

All the attendees experienced for two days long 28 powerful speakers from both the bearing & reliability competences, listened to selected experts presenting their strategies to make the bearing and their assets more reliable. There were in total 8 workshops designed to help implementing the best strategies and the chance to visit the key industrial players at the Exhibition center.

After the mega successful first edition of BRCE2016, the decision is made quickly to continue with this great concept and to run BRCE2017 in the Westfalenhallen Dortmund in Autumn 2017.

The BRCE 2017 event will be a memorable event- consisting of:

- 4 Key Note Presentations (1 hour Duration) The Global Gurus
- 16 Global Bearing and Reliability Presentations (30 Minutes each) The Industrial Experts
- 32 Bearing and Reliability Application Presentations (30 Minutes each) The Best Practices in Maintenance (2 corners in the expo area)

HANNOVER MESSE 2017
WITH MOTION, DRIVE & AUTOMATION (MDA)

Gear Up For The Fourth

Industrial Revolution

HANNOVER MESS

MOTION, DRIVE & AUTOMATION (MDA)

State-of-the-art power transmission and control systems are the key to tomorrow's smart factories. As the world's biggest industrial technology show, HANNOVER MESSE (24- 28 April 2017 in Hannover, Germany) brings together the most advanced Industry 4.0 solutions from around the globe at one convenient location. That's everything from condition monitoring systems to the latest production strategies for cost-efficient lifecycle management.

Antifriction bearings, gearboxes, pumps, cylinders and valves, linear motion systems. At the Motion, Drive & Automation (MDA) section of HANNOVER MESSE, you will witness the technologies that will keep tomorrow's factories moving. MDA features future-defining innovations for the entire value chain.

The MDA Forum is where the world's leading mechanical and plant engineering companies present and explain their latest innovations. This year's Forum centers around the keynote themes of Industrie 4.0, sustainability and energy efficiency, condition monitoring systems (CMS), drive systems for wind turbines, and sealing technology.

At MDA, you'll discover the smart products and integrated solutions you need to optimize your drive, hydraulic and pneumatic systems and make your production processes and products more efficient and sustainable. Meet key decision makers from all sectors of industry worldwide.

Predictive Maintenance 4.0 also a key topic at HANNOVER MESSE

Repairing machinery parts after a failure has occurred is so yesterday. Nowadays, thanks to advanced sensor technology and intelligent data analysis systems, it is possible to predict failures and undertake maintenance before they happen. In today's rapidly emerging Industry

4.0 environment, machines, components and workpieces are digitally integrated and able to “talk” to one another. This enables factory operators to continuously capture data on machine states, combine it with information from other systems (such as ERP or CRM software), analyze it and predict the optimal point in time at which to initiate maintenance. It is hoped that this new approach to maintenance – known as predictive maintenance, or PdM for short – will pinpoint impending outages before they occur, speed up overhaul processes and avoid production outages.

“Predictive maintenance is currently the most talked-about and closely watched maintenance, repair and overhaul strategy out there,” says Peter-Michael Synek, the Deputy General Manager of Germany’s VDMA Fluid Power Association. A recent study by the World Economic Forum and the consulting firm Accenture lends substance to the high hopes currently riding on PdM. According to the study, PdM can reduce the cost of planned repairs by 12 percent, cut maintenance costs by almost 30 percent and reduce unscheduled downtime by a massive 70 percent. Synek: “Predictive maintenance is a pivotal part of the Industry 4.0 landscape.”

The displays and live demonstrations at the “Predictive Maintenance 4.0” showcase will be supported by guided tours that will take participants to the display stands of selected providers at various locations throughout HANNOVER MESSE. Tour participants will witness continuous machine data capture, processing and analysis in action and learn how it can give factory operators real, useable information on the condition of their systems, machines and machine components.

Peter-Michael Synek sees predictive maintenance as “the next evolutionary stage from conventional maintenance strategies” and a development that delivers major benefits to plant operators. “The ability to reduce or even eliminate unforeseen downtime and associated production bottlenecks flows through into greater productivity. Maintenance and servicing costs go down, and production quality and planning reliability go up,” he says.

Reserve your space now and witness Industry 4.0 and Predictive Maintenance 4.0 at HANNOVER MESSE 2017. EPTDA members can contact for their special info@eptda.org conditions with the EPTDA / PTDA Pavilion at HANNOVER MDA 2017.
